FIOCCHI'S NEW RHINO 16 LOAD CHARGING INTO SPORTING CLAYS FIELDS ACROSS AMERICA!

Awesome Load Delivers 1-1/16 Oz. Shot Load Driven at High-Velocity to Smash Clay Targets Into Dust

Fiocchi Ammunition's Rhino 16 (Fiocchi Item #12TX16-8), a new 12 gauge addition to its highly-renowned Target Shotgun Line, is rapidly charging its way into acceptance by the sporting clays circuit, thanks to its incredible performance characteristics.

In designing this product for the American market, Fiocchi drew inspiration from its more than 130-year tradition of supplying quality products to competitive target shooters around the world. The chosen lead shot for this load, aside from its near perfect roundness for optimal patterning ability, contains an amazingly high antimony content of 5%. This high hardness contributes to this shot's power to consistently break clay targets.

Fiocchi's Rhino 16 load is constructed utilizing a premium bi-directionally extruded plastic 2-inch case with a high-carbon content head chosen for its tensile strength. Fiocchi uses American-made powder providing an exceptionally clean burn ratio with consistent burning temperature. In addition to Fiocchi's renowned primers, only top-of-the-line Italian wads are used with a shot cup that encloses the pellets until they leave the muzzle to prevent their deformation. These wads also contain a built-in shock absorber to lessen felt recoil.

Fiocchi's choice of 1 1/16 oz. of #8 shot is significant in the Rhino 16's performance as well. In ancient Rome, wise men coined the expression, "In Medio stat Virtus" (In the middle resides the virtue), and Fiocchi engineers prove that this expression still holds true today. Fiocchi's Rhino 16 couples the low felt recoil of a 1 oz. load with just enough extra shot to add additional security for those more distant targets. The result is the optimal balance between power and patterning performance!
